Put on your chic shades, because the style, elegance, and sheer simplicity of what Villa Vici does for interior design is blazing.

Vikki Leftwich creates stunning homescapes that are at once elegant and livable, proving the truth of that old adage that “less is more” when it comes to interior design.

“I believe in making every space, every surface, serve a purpose,” says Vikki. “This is especially true when designing for smaller spaces, but it is also important when designing for expansive homes that can so easily lose their personality. You shouldn’t have to sacrifice comfort and a beautiful form for a useful function.”

That wisdom has served Villa Vici well for 22 years, attracting the attention of architects who want upscale interior designs for the new homes they’re building, as well as private clients who want to upstyle the homes they’ve grown to love.

“We’re a furniture store that offers one-stop convenience for interior design,” describes Vikki. In window treatments, bedding, accents, lighting, and upholstery, as well as custom-made furnishings and cabinetry, Villa Vici offers personality with panache.

From its location on Magazine Street, Villa Vici serves its clients not only in New Orleans, but also across the state and across the country, from cozy beach cottages along Florida’s Gulf coast, to 25,000 square-foot homes growing in upscale neighborhoods.

“We have tremendous resources available at our fingertips,” says Vikki, “and we create memorable home treatments by combining textures in striking ways that are contemporary without being ‘trendy.’ A classic furniture design merges well with modern fabrics, helping to create a timeless look that will not go out of style.”

Elegance and sophistication accompany every Villa Vici installation, but Vikki points out that such results can be accomplished affordably.

“Quality doesn’t have to be costly,” she assures.

For more than two decades, Vikki has cultivated vendors around the world who provide her with the quality and the price that meet her exacting standards — and yours.
